

Auto Tags Use Mountain of Steel But It's Tiny Part of Year's Total

CLEVELAND May 20.—Steel together all the automobile tags used annually in America and you will have enough steel to construct a building the size of the Woolworth tower. This is interesting but it sounds unimportant. Couple this fact, however, with the realization that automobile tag production is an infinitesimal part of steel production, and the average man may grasp an idea of its insignificance, which equals 2,500,000 tags a year.

If the average man realizes this he may come near to understanding the cause of the confusion in industry which confronts us, Lee H. Miller, chief engineer and organizer of the American Institute of Steel Construction told the Associated Press today.

"Humanity has caught itself

in a grip of steel so tremendous that the future of everyone is uncertain, from the banker down to the laboring man," Miller said. Steel has created an entirely new civilization, Miller said and has become as essential to it as water and air are to life.

"Unlike the other ages of stone, bronze and iron, we know definitely when the age of steel began—to the decade," he said. "It began in the 1850's when we developed a temperature that would melt a steel ingot."

"We will never run out of material for carrying on our steel civilization, for 4 1/2 per cent of the earth's crust is iron. Continuance of our steel civilization will depend upon development of power facilities for production and ability to keep it under our control."

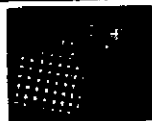

PLANS NEW AIR DEVICE

LOCAL MEN TO GET ROAD JOBS

Marion County Labor To Be Given Preference in Construction of Highway.

Much of the approximately $135,000 to be spent by the state highway department on improvement of the Harding Highway east of the city will be spent locally for labor and supplies. County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens said today.

The contract is to be let Tuesday, May 27, at Columbus, and present indications are that bidding will be spirited for the job, according to Leavens. The contract calls for the reconstruction of the highway from Marion to Route 98, four miles east. The road is to be widened to 20 feet.

Labor work likely will be done by only Marion men, while practically all of the supplies probably will be purchased locally. Leavens said, since stone and sand are available in plentiful quantities here.

Contractors may bid on any one or all of three types of material: concrete, bituminous macadam, and bituminous macadam with concrete shoulders. State estimates for the three types are: Concrete, $134,840.70; bituminous macadam, $128,257.70; and bituminous macadam with concrete shoulders, $127,000.18.

In addition to the road contract, a contract also will be let for a bridge over Grave Creek, at the eastern city limits. Its estimated cost is slightly in excess of $10,000.

MIAMI OFFICERS CATCH AL AGAIN

Capone Arrested Third Time in 10 Days; Faces Vagrancy Charge.

By The Associated Press. MIAMI, Fla., May 20—Arresting "Scarface Al" Capone for the third time in 10 days, Miami authorities altered their previous tactics to permit the release of the Chicago racketeer on $100 bond, but directed him to appear in city court today to answer a vagrancy charge.

The police took Capone into custody last night while he was enroute to a boxing bout. Twice before he had been detained for "investigation," once being held in jail overnight in the campaign to cut short his stay here. Each time he gained his freedom by habeas corpus proceedings, but authorities announced their determination to pursue the so-called Chicago plan of arresting repeated gangsters every time a policeman sees them.

Last night's arrest was made while city commissioners had before them a new vagrancy ordinance, providing a $500 fine or 90-day jail term for anyone convicted as a vagrant.

Organized labor representatives prevented passage of the new ordinance yesterday, objecting to its phraseology.

FORMER SKI CHAMP HANGED AS SLAYER

"Bing" Anderson Calm as He Dies for Murder of Hotel Clerk.

SYDNEY, N. S., May 20—Calm and almost indifferent to his fate, Ingrid "Bing" Anderson, champion ski jumper, was hanged here early today. He was convicted of the murder of a Sydney hotel clerk.

The trap was sprung at 12 minutes after 1 o'clock.

Shortly before his death the New Hampshire athlete joked and laughed and sang songs of his childhood.

"Now are all the boys back in Berlin?" he asked Alfred Halverson, secretary of the Nansen Ski club of Berlin, New Hampshire, who visited Anderson in his cell last night. He also asked as to his mother's health.

"I am sorry it turned out this way, but thanks just the same. I know you did everything that could be done for me."

After saying his last goodbyes, the stolid Anderson sat quietly waiting his summons to death.

Anderson, who was the champion ski jumper of New England, was found guilty of the murder here in February of Debilis Remberg, night clerk in a hotel where Anderson was a guest. Appeals to higher courts to save the athlete's life were fruitless.

When tempted to over-indulge

"Reach for a Lucky instead"

Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Avoid that future shadow* by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that modern ever-youthful figure. "Reach for a Lucky instead."

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough

"I have come to the conclusion," writes Dr. Henry Thompson, M. D., F. R. S., "that more than half the disease that embitters human life is due to avoidable errors in diet." We do not recommend that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful figure.

140 Earth Streets To Get Application of Oil, Tar

Safety Director D. J. Harlow Outlines Extensive Program of Work on Unimproved Thoroughfares; Work Started in Southwest Portion of City.

Marion earth streets will probably be in better condition than ever before when an improvement program being worked out in the city service department by D. J. Harlow, service director, is completed.

No less than 140 earth streets are to be scraped, bordered by gutters and coated with road oil. All the streets are scarified and scraped before the oil treatment is applied, leveling chuck holes and filling in low spots where water formerly collected after rains. By cutting gutters and reopening storm water basins which have not functioned for years, the department will give these streets better drainage.

Oil Holds Dust
One of the most evident advantages of the oil treatment is its dust binding qualities. Dried in the heat of summer, the flying dust is the nemesis of every housekeeper, unless bound to the road surface by oil.

More substantial treatment is provided for streets that see more than ordinary use. A heavier oil of almost asphalt consistency is applied and covered with stone chips. This forms a water tight pavement that insures an even surface for months.

Cheney av. and Walnut st. are examples of the latter treatment. Both have been conditioned for heavy use and will need but slight attention to keep them in condition. West Fairground st. has also been resurfaced in this manner.

The street oiling program got under way a few days ago in the southwest quarter of the city, and many streets have already been given treatment. Streets in other quarters of the city are being scarified and prepared for application of oil.

Several streets completed
Sugar, Wood, Herman, Darlow, Buckeye, Henry, Lincoln, Whitaker, Congress, Clinton, South Davis, Osgood, Smith, Evans, Walnut, and other streets have already received treatment.

Simultaneously, the service department is conducting a thorough curb repairing program throughout the city. Along a number of paved streets, sections of concrete or stone curb have cracked, broken or disintegrated. These are being rebuilt.

The roadway leading to the ball diamonds at Lincoln park in the northwest quarter of the city has been scarified and given an application of oil. This was done in anticipation of considerable use of the park this year.

BISHOP WAS EXONERATION

Cannon Given Clean Bill by Committee After He Says He's "Sorry."

DALLAS, Tex., May 20—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., stood exonerated today of charges of stock market speculation following a vote of 54 to 11 returned last night by the episcopacy committee of the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

The committee voted Bishop Cannon's exoneration only after he stated that he was "sorry he had caused the church any embarrassment."

Bishop Cannon also promised the committee that he would never again trade in margins on the stock market.

Charges of stock market gambling were brought against the bishop last week by 21 laymen of the church, headed by Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy.

The committee gave its indorsement last night to Bishop Cannon's chairmanship of the church temperance board, although former Secretary of the Navy Daniels opposed it. The temperance committee, in a report presented to the general church yesterday, opposed modification of the eighteenth amendment.

Gold Star Mothers Go to Sons' Graves

By The Associated Press
PARIS, May 20—Most of the first contingent of Gold Star mothers in France visiting the graves of their sons left in a drizzling rain today for the battlefield cemeteries where their sons lie.

The journey to the former battlefield was made at a leisurely pace and the four groups were not expected to reach their destination until tonight. The first visit to graves will be made tomorrow.

The smaller number remaining in Paris tomorrow will again visit the Suresnes cemetery on the slope of Mount Valerien near Paris. They spent today sightseeing and resting.

MORE ARRESTS IN DRY RAIDS

Federal Officers Continuing Drive in Central and Southern Ohio.

COLUMBUS, May 20—Intent upon "drying up" central and southern Ohio, federal prohibition agents today have spread the same net which entrapped 21 men and women at Newark last week and captured four men and one woman at New Straitsville, besides causing three more arrests at Newark and the issuance of warrants against the trustees of the Eagles and Druids clubs in that Licking county city.

New Straitsville, which is often referred to as "the wettest spot in Ohio," was visited by the dry agents late yesterday and four men and one woman were arrested. No liquor was seized, the dry agents said, the victims being taken into custody on previous violations.

Those arrested there were Bertha Hoer, 40, Frank Saulsberger, 37, Samuel Ambrose, 53, Theodore Wilson, 30, and Fred Newman, 38. All were charged with the possession of liquor and maintaining a nuisance.

Meanwhile, the prohibition officers caused the arrest of Rufus Jones, safety director of Newark, on a charge of obstructing a federal officer. The alleged offense is said to have occurred when dry agents made raids there Friday. Jones has been released on $1,000 bond after pleading not guilty.

The other Newark men were also arrested as the result of the raids there last week when 34 persons were taken into custody. The latest victims are Clyde Woolley, 24, and Minor Johnson, 30.

Trustees of the Eagles and Druids homes in Newark are to be arraigned in federal court here Thursday.

COLUMBUS, O., May 20—An allegation that the Ohio speed laws are unconstitutional today was contained in the appeal for a new trial for Kenneth Driggs, 34-year-old saxophone player, who, last week, was convicted of a manslaughter charge in connection with a fatal automobile accident here March 31.

Attorneys for young Driggs also charged that County Prosecutor John

J. Chester used facts not contained in the testimony in delivering the state's charge to the jury.

Life is merely a sentence at best labor—with something added for good behavior.

THE New WESTINGHOUSE ALONE COMBINES

THESE
3 DESIRABLE FEATURES

Produced in the Westinghouse Laboratories
after 12 years' experiments

CONVENIENCE and better food preservation are the chief purposes of electrical refrigeration. But, when you buy a refrigerator, you want more than that. You choose one which has the most convenience. In the new Westinghouse you find the only refrigerator which has combined the three desirable refinements in an incomparably beautiful cabinet—a refrigerator with these improvements made possible by its hermetically sealed freezing unit.

The new Westinghouse provides the Buffet-Top—an outside shelf that is convenient when you remove or replace food in the cold compartment. The handy Temperature-Selector with seven freezing speed variations—a temperature control which is practically placed in the center front panel, arm-high, where it can be adjusted with greater ease. And Broom-High Legs to facilitate cleaning beneath the food compartment.

Note, too, the many other excellent points which distinguish the new Westinghouse... the spacious, symmetrical cabinet... the flexible rubber ice tray from which one cube can be taken without disturbing the others... the "whisper" action of the motor-compressor... the smooth-running mechanism which has been rendered dust- and dirt-proof by the hermetic sealing of the freezing unit.

Close examination reveals other exceptional features of the new Westinghouse. When you consider buying an electrical refrigerator, by all means come in—we welcome your inspection!

MAYOR JONES TALKS ON WATER CO. DEAL

All Negotiations Will Be Open. He Asserts; Proposal To Be Investigated.

Water company six months in advance of the purchase. In this instance we are giving a full year's notice, quite the reverse of the bold assertion of Dr. Smith.

Dr. Smith wanted to know what assurance the public has that it will not effect the tax rate in the future also how the rate on the bonds will be taken care of. Let me say for the benefit of all that no time will there be one penny taken from taxation to pay on the purchase price or interest of the Water company. This is a 100 per cent mortgage proposition against the Water company property only.

Let me say further that all mortgages will be held in the open. The idea of council in passing the resolution at this time was to give ample time to properly investigate and have engineers appraise the property that a fair price be determined. There is investigation and appraisal will not cost the taxpayer one penny.

There are 153 municipalities owned water plants owned by 20 privately owned in the state of Ohio. Marion now has the opportunity of thoroughly investigating this proposal at a cost to a single citizen and after the investigation if it does not look like good business the city has the right to turn it down.

This whole proposition hinges upon the price to be paid and the price in turn hinges upon the value of the property as determined by consultants, engineers.

I personally feel that it is my duty to let the people of Marion know about all such projects that are of interest to them and then be governed by a majority thereof. I also believe that every person is entitled to his own opinion but should make an effort to get all of the facts before making final decisions. We welcome constructive criticism.

GRAF STARTS TRIP ACROSS ATLANTIC

Eckener Heads Zeppelin on Course Directed Toward Equator.

5:40 p. m. (12:10 p. m. eastern standard time) yesterday after a trip of 33 hours, and 22 minutes from Friedrichshafen where it left at 5:18 p. m. (11:15 a. m.) Sunday. The flight to Gibraltar which is not far from Seville, actually was made in much less time but the Zeppelin was afraid to land during the intense noon-day heat and cruised for several hours about over northern Africa before bringing the Graf to the specially constructed mooring mast at Gibraltar airport.

First word of the Graf Zeppelin was received about six hours after her departure from Cullin, transradio at Madrid reporting that the Graf was heard by the Canary Islands in communication with a steamer.

U. S. FLEET MASSED BEFORE PRESIDENT

Chief Executive Witnesses Exhibition of U. S. Naval Power in Action.

The line under Admiral La M. Duff in aboard the California rolled and surged behind him to the selected reviewing ground. Among them came the Florida and Utah perhaps to their last muster with the great fleet.

Program for Review
With six rows to spare the navy staff worked out a program for the review sending the great armada by in reviewing ship under conditions rarely witnessed by civilians. Light cruisers and destroyers had orders to steam just at a 25-knots gait then swing away for a ten mile dash to assigned posts for the maneuvers to follow. Even the ranked lines of the battleships themselves were ordered to pass at a 15-knot clip.

The two big fleet submarines were given right of line for the review. Their orders called for a surface on approach to the Salt Lake City and then a simultaneous dive, the sea being under water for 10 minutes, then bob up into view again.

Next in line with the Detroit as flagship, two divisions of light cruisers were placed steaming in column while behind them were posted two squadrons of destroyers. Next in line came the battleships the Texas under Pratt's flag leading the way.

Just off all were the huge 11,000-ton floating airbases Saratoga and Lexington with their scores of planes crowding the vast open flying decks under orders to sweep into the air upon the Salt Lake City. Had been passed almost a plane guard of four swift destroyers was stationed on the flanks of the carriers.

The program also included a water maneuver before attempted over water and accomplished last week on land. This called for a plane to take off from one of the aircraft carriers and attach itself to the Los Angeles and then after an interval disengage itself and return to the carrier.

TEAR GAS BOMBS ARE PUZZLE TO SHERIFF

Franco Finds Missiles in Deserted House Near Delaware, Union County Line.

Four bombs found last night in a deserted house on the boundary road near Delaware and Union counties today puzzled Sheriff John J. Francis.

Franco was called to the place early last night by a telephone call from Hichwood which informed him that four men driving a Buick sedan were acting mysteriously in that vicinity.

Arriving at the scene Francis found the men had left, but he discovered evidences of tear bombs which the quartet had left behind. Since the house contained nothing of value, Francis is of the opinion that the men were making it a headquarters while planning a holdup in which the bombs were to be used.

BATTLE OF BALLOTS ON IN PENNSYLVANIA

Republican Voters Deciding One of Most Bitter Conflicts in State's History.

The violent act and the state enforcement law. All about for a protective tariff. Of the three groups is running without public announced alliances with any other candidate. His opponent however has made it plain that he has a secret understanding with Clifford Churchill who seeks the gubernatorial nomination.

Elect Complete
Dicks is on the complete state ticket that carries Francis B. Shunk, Thomas Philadelphia former attorney general for governor.

Hollen has two associates on the ticket—Thomas W. Phillips, Jr. of Butler, for secretary and Charles Durrant, of Scranton, for lieutenant governor.

Churchill seeking the nomination for the office he held in 1921 to 1927, has one running mate—Charles L. Armstrong, of Leeburg, a former member of the legislature and co-author of the state prohibition enforcement act. Churchill is a house dry.

Senator Harold P. Ny, North Dakota, chairman of the senate primary campaign investigating committee, announced in Washington that the committee would have a force of watchers stationed at strategic points to record irregularities in voting, if any.

Writer of an incident book does not seem to realize that readers have already been bored by three or four books of that kind. If they get to the 11th theme he should stop.

Sportsmanship at West Point.

It is to be doubted if the country is deeply concerned as a result of the congressional intimation that Cadet Christian Cagle, recently forced to resign, was permitted to remain at West Point for two years, owing to his prowess in football, after the authorities there had had knowledge of his marriage
in violation of the rules of the academy.

The statement of Captain W. H. Wells, intelligence officer at the Point, given immediately following the uttering of the intimation, that he was "positive that no officer
on duty at West Point had any knowledge that Mr. Cagle was married prior to press notices" to that effect, we believe, will be very generally accepted as satisfactory.

But charges were made on the floor of the house in connection with the Cagle matter
by both Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, and Representative Fred A.
Britten, of Illinois, chairman of the house
naval affairs committee, reflecting on the sportsmanship practiced at the military academy for which there may be foundation.

Representative Fish, a one-time Harvard football star who represents the West Point
district, charged that the "very" basis of amateur sportsmanship was being undermined
by practices at West Point, alleging that under present practices, the academy was threatening to abandon its primary purpose of "training the best young army officers in the world" and going in for the development of professional football players, claiming that youths entered the academy simply to continue their football careers in schools and colleges and then resigned without any service to the government in the army, naming such recent stars as Garbisch, Sprague, McEwan and Cagle as cases in point. "These men," he said, "with several years' training
in football, and older than the average cadet,
shut out other boys who are legitimate candidates for the football team."

Congressman Britten deplored the West Point attitude of wanting to play other schools under the West Point rules. "It's the old army high hat game, and I don't like it," and he backed Congressman Fish's
charges of lack of sportsmanship by reciting
that when he had asked officers why West Point refused to adopt intercollegiate rules,
the answer given him was because they could not win any games under those rules. "If that is so," continued Mr. Britten, "then the object is victory and not honest-to-god sportsmanship."

There is always the possibility, of course, that Mr. Britten's chairmanship of the naval affairs committee may influence him in his consideration of matters in connection with the military school, but even at that the charges and statements of the two congressmen indicate that West Point athletics are suffering from much the same practices which until very recently cast a cloud upon the sportsmanship of many of our leading universities and colleges.

As Mr. Fish implies, our army and navy schools should be institutions for the training
of officers and not for the development of professional athletes.

Daily Proverb—"A debauched son of a noble family is a lost stream from a clear spring."

Ten persons killed and more than forty injured in automobile accidents Sunday.
And it wasn't an overly good day for joy-
riding at that!

"We have now learned," says Dean Inge,
"that evolution is not always from the worse
to the better." That should make the Tennesseans madder than ever.

From New York City comes the announcement that "Business" is getting ready to climb out of the pit of depression. Go to it, Business! You've been waiting long enough,
certainly, to make the start!

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, deplores the fact that a man of Ambassador Morrow's standing should wage his campaign
on the liquor issue. Isn't that the one issue of issues all candidates are today forced to face?

William Allen White says that "no law will make men moral that need a law." Isn't William Allen getting on to mighty dangerous ground for a resident of dry Kansas?

The board of bishops of the Methodist church, in conference in Boston, passed a resolution declaring that "in some instances
the wet propaganda has reached the proportions of treasonable utterances." So far as that goes, the fanatics on both sides of the question are tarred with pretty much the same stick.

Two youths inaugurated their criminal careers, one day last week, by stealing burglar alarms at the plant of a Chicago concern.
Possibly their idea was to familiarize themselves with the workings of burglar alarms.

Five hundred pedestrians were killed by automobiles in New York City in 1929 and 14,251 injured, according to figures given out by Police Commissioner Whelan, which strikes us as very good reason why he should have inaugurated his campaign for the protection of pedestrians, not only against motorists, but against their own carelessness as well.

A resident of Danville, Virginia, is showing
sea shells which he found on his front porch
following a hailstorm. There "oughta be a law" compelling Mother Nature to distill
her water before starting her ice-making machine.

Governor Dan Moody, of Texas, has again
denied that he ordered Ranger Captain Frank Hammer, at Sherman, Texas, not to shoot anybody during the rioting which resulted in the burning of the courthouse there and the slaying of a negro prisoner. Let us hope that he did not. It would be decidedly disconcerting to find the governor of a great state nullifying
the preservation of law and order in the fear
that he might lose votes by enforcing the law.

Canada's Retaliatory Tariff Rates.

That our trade with Canada will be adversely affected to the extent of $235,000,000 annually as the result of the new Canadian tariff law, designed to foster the trade of the British empire and make good the Dominion's threat to retaliate against the United States
for the adverse rates that appear against Canada in the tariff bill pending in congress.
Is the word received by the department of commerce in Washington from Lynn W.
Meekins, our commercial attache in Ottawa,
and A. H. Thiemann, assistant trade commissioner there.

Iron and steel products, machinery, fruits and vegetables are chiefly affected by the new Canadian duties, and countervailing
duties are also carried on other products.

As Canada has been our largest customer,
buying approximately $300,000,000 worth of our products annually, her new tariffs naturally mean far more to us than would those of some lesser customer. But the threat against our export trade does not stop with Canada. We are liable to suffer correspondingly in our trade with New Zealand and Australia and Argentina threaten to take action much the same as our neighbor to the North in retaliation for the rates set out in our pending tariff measure, all of which actions and contemplated actions bring up the question as to how far a protective tariff
should go to encourage home industry.

Even the most ardent believer in the advantage of a protective tariff must pause and admit that tariff rates can be raised to a height where they will lead to retaliatory measures which may so decrease our export trade as to prove liabilities rather than assets to our industries. We do not say that the rates set up in the pending tariff bill will have that effect, but it is very well in the framing of a tariff bill to keep such a possibility in mind.

A Paris cable says Alcega Sample McPherson's party has arrived there, but that Alcega is missing. It's worth noting that there is a lot of desert country in the neighborhood
of the last point from which the presence of Alcega was reported and Alcega has a weakness for deserts.

BUILD FOR NAVAL REDUCTION.

Secretary Simson gave the proponents of naval underbuilding something to think about, when he rehearsed the critics of the London naval treaty for their fault finding.

"You can't blame the American delegation," said
the head of that group, "for not handing you cruiser parity right off the griddle, when we went to London with only two cruisers. All we could do was to lay the framework for equality."

The underbuilders, nevertheless, will not think about this matter. They will go right on, demanding that the United States shall not build up to the sixteen ten-thousand-ton cruisers allowed in the treaty, by the time the treaty expires in 1930.
Urging that we "go slow," they will ignore that weight of cruisers built, in all parleys over parity, or limitation. They will ignore the fact that the General conference failed mainly because the United States went there practically without any cruisers.
They ignore, too, the more recent circumstance that the United States was so headstrong by lack of cruisers at London it yielded to Japan's demands
for a ratio of severity to one hundred.

This may be taken as assumed: Great Britain and Japan will not underbuild. When the London treaty expires in 1930, both these powers will have all the cruisers allowed them. And the United States, if it goes to the next conference
with nothing to trade on, will be in a poor position,
trying to back its financial policy against the other powers' naval actuality. It does not matter that we have the money; we must have the ships.
If we are to be any position of strength, when the next step toward naval reduction is to be taken in a conference of the powers.

The stronger we are in 1930, the better will be the outlook for naval reduction. As Secretary Simson said, only the framework for equality and hence reduction, has been laid in the London
treaty.—Minneapolis Journal.

TYPES OF PICTURES.

Editor Star—There is a great possibility
of movies in their present state of near perfection,
with clear pictures, audible sound reproductions
and pleasing colors, doing either a degree of good or a great harm.

I think it not only unwise, but definitely a major crime against our democracy to show before the public a picture which, in my opinion, has a purpose behind it—that will make the people
disloyal to upholding the eighteenth amendment of the constitution.

Even should I be mistaken in my opinion of the picture recently shown at the Palace in thinking that the dear old lady is capitalizing on her former acquaintance with the great Lincoln by suddenly changing to stating "No group of men can say what to drink." I am certain the result
on the people is negative to an American's creed.
I don't believe Lincoln would take pride in any such disloyal citizen's acquaintance as the old lady supposedly did of his.

One who is a loyal American believing in the upholding of our constitution and right, should not show approval or side in with those who are applying such pictures.

Demand something that is not lowering our zealment!

A DAYTON VIEW.

Editor Star—I note your editorial in Friday's issue, "Denmark Solves Her Liquor Problem." I do not agree that "such a course might increase liquor consumption and drunkenness." Alcohol is being sold for auto radiators, also for mechanical uses, at sixty-nine to eighty cents per gallon,
it being 100 proof. Such is the commodity value. Beverage alcohol of ninety proof is of high content, so the 100 proof would cut to two and a half gallons of beverage, making an approximate commodity price of thirty-four to forty cents.

Small stills could not be operated successfully,
therefore production would be curtailed. Importers could not operate against such price. I believe about 100 per cent. of the prosecutions for breaking the eighteenth amendment are for sale,
transportation, possession and conspiracy to break
the law, with the motive in every case being the lure for gold.

I have been "feeling out" numerous United States senators and officials along this line for the last two years. Have some very strong approvals.
It seems to me obvious that forty cent liquor would destroy the bootlegger's avocation. It would also make the product too cheap to adulterate.
Haskok, Althebury and DuPont ought approve, if they are honest. So far I have failed to find a person who can advance a reason why Uncle Sam
should continue to ring his cash register for alcohol
tax money.

Your truly,
Dayton, Ohio. William M. Pettit.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, May 20—Arnold Bennett recently observed that the most interesting side
of an individual's life in print is encompassed
in the trivial things rarely considered worth mentioning. A good idea to elaborate on a dull day. So here goes:

I am frightened stiff when a policeman
walks toward me. I never sit in a barber's chair without wondering what would happen
if the barber suddenly let out a scream and went mad. I take two baths a day—a cold plunge in the morning and a warm tub at night and blush when caught in a fib.

I like to see romantic plays and picture myself in the leading role. And when I hear a hand conjure up a picture of myself as a hero speaking from the platform of a train in my home town. Yet I have refused radio offers because I am the world's worst speaker.
I love to snore.

The only two vegetables I can not eat are radishes and carrots. My favorite flower is the gardenia. My cable manners are atrocious, and I never make the slightest impression on strangers. I will not attend the theater unless sure of an aisle seat. I was arrested at the age of eleven for swimming in la natural.

I read an average of a half dozen books
weekly, try to eat in a different restaurant
every night and subscribe to two clipping bureaus. I quit drinking because it did not agree with me, and discovered I was not only far happier as a teetotaler, but got more out of life. I can read German and speak a little French.

I rarely smoke more than three cigars
daily and nothing hores me so much as a night club. I like people, but have not more than a dozen intimates. I love Hattery and am easily flattered. Personal criticism used to infuriate me, but of late years I enjoy it. I have been rescued three times from drowning.

When I take off my clothes at night I scatter them all around the room. I have invested more in fancy pajamas and house
robes than in all other articles of wear apart combined. My head is shaped exactly like an egg and I wear a 7 1/2 hat. Purple is my favorite color. I know no grammatical rules.

This is heaps of fun. And imagine getting paid for it! Only one person has ever done me a downright scurrilous trick. I met my wife when she was four years old in a kindergarten. We went through public school together. And lived a block from each other.
My first impression of her was beauty. And I have never lost that impression. My mother-in-law has lived with us twelve years. We have her with us wherever we go. My hair will not stay brushed ten minutes. I choke myself wearing tight collars and secretly long
to play an accordion like Phil Baker.

Note to printer: How is the "I" box holding out? I do not like to be alone. My only articles of jewelry are a cameo ring—my mother's engagement ring—and a Cartier wrist watch presented by one of my closest friends. I have more than 200 canes in a collection coming from every city and country
I have visited. Frequently I think I am losing my mind. I use a gargle called audiphone a half dozen times a day. My tailor is Lanvin in Paris and my shoemaker is Costa
in the same city. My choice candy is peppermint waters made by Sherry and my favorite dessert is floating island. I do not drink coffee at night and do not snore. I was born in Plattsburg, Missouri, and reared in Gallipolis, Ohio.

A fellow could run on this way for a couple of columns. My breakfast is invariably piled oranges, thinly sliced whole-wheat toast, soft-boiled eggs, coffee and preserves. I often eat a glass of jelly at a morning meal.
I have not eaten lunch in twenty years. I weigh 145 pounds, am long, thin and like to go to free. I have scarcely any physical courage, although I am not easily bluffed. I love gloomy days and I once played the mandolin. My initials O. O. stand for Oscar Odd.

I jump every time the telephone rings, like perfume and am a hound for cut-out monogrammed handkerchiefs. I will not be a house guest on account of my disorderly working habits. I believe in life after the change called death. When I was a child I swiped pennies from my grandmother. I do not belong to any clubs. When I become excited my voice has a tremolo. I am old enough to know a lot of things I have never learned—and to my own discomfort. I hate sleep at night and love it in the morning. A column like this fairly explodes in your hand.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Friday, May 20,
The body of King Edward VII was laid at rest in St. George's chapel at Windsor. It was the most imposing funeral the world had ever seen.

The commencement exercises of the Cadedonia schools were held with twelve graduates: Arva Dance, Alice, Hanley, Eva Ault, Winifred Glathart, Helen Vetter, Mildred
Seckel, Amanda Drake, Frank Seckel, Louie
Simpson, Kelcey Fields, Frank Witred and Clarence Ulich.

Charles Lederman, a former resident of Marion, was exonerated of the silly charge
made in Columbus, that he had stolen half a dozen briques.

County Auditor Charles L. Allen told appraisers that city realty was appraised at its full value and that he wanted farm lands,
which were on the duplicate at from thirty
to forty per cent. of their value, appraised
like city realty.

Miss Mary Welch and Mr. Noah Weaver
were married by Rev. George E. Barnard.
A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Minor
Maxwell, of Toledo avenue.

Nine-year-old Grace Megahey fell while at play and broke her left arm.
Mrs. Sarah James and Mr. William Rode-beck were married by Rev. Levi Hite.

Wave Mechanics.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Flux and eternal change! These words express the characteristic qualities of contemporary physics. A new theory is put forward to account for what goes on inside the atom.
After a little while it becomes firmly established. Further investigation, however,
shows that the new theory will not do calculations which experiments in the laboratory
show that it must do. Then some ingenious physicist comes forward and invents a theory
markedly dissimilar to the former theory, inwhich will not only do all the former theory
did but also fulfill the new experimental requirements.

This is what has recently happened in the study of the atom. Niels Bohr advanced a plausible theory of the atom, likening it to a miniature solar system. This theory caught the popular fancy and was elaborately described in numerous popular magazines and newspapers. It was attractive, ingenious and easily understood—which features account
for its large popularity.

Unfortunately, Bohr had to make a number of assumptions, hypotheses especially made up to fit the case. The electron moves around inside the atom in orbits, which are sometimes circular but are also elliptical in shape. These various orbits were spoken of as being at different "energy levels." An electron was presumed to jump from one of these orbits to another as the result of some external influence. When it jumped from an orbit of high energy to one of lower energy it would radiate outside the difference of energy in the form of light.

A new hypothesis, within recent years, has been advanced by Louis de Broglie, who has just been awarded the Nobel prize for his brilliant work in physics. This new theory rests on Einstein's theory regarding the relation between the mass of a body and the energy which it possesses.

Einstein maintains that a mass of m grams,
say, is equivalent to an energy represented
by m multiplied by the square of the velocity
of light. This conclusion is truly astounding, in its consequences. As Hagenow says: Suppose some one in King Tutank-Amen's day had started an engine with just one ounce of "fuel" that could be gradually converted into mechanical energy at a rate to keep the engine running without a stop with an output of thirty horse-power. The engine would be going yet, with some three hundred years
to run before this ounce of matter would be entirely consumed.

De Broglie combined the Einstein energy
theory with the famous quantum theory regarding the connection between a period of an atom and the frequency of its vibration.
The result of De Broglie's assumption led to a most interesting state of affairs. It turned out that every mass-particle was accompanied by a retinue of waves. Some of these waves pressed on ahead as a sort of undulatory advance guard, while others lagged behind as rear guard. The mean of the speed of the faster and slower waves, however, gave a specific velocity—namely, the velocity of light.

The extraordinary interest of the new theory is that it explains in a more or less natural way the arbitrary assumptions of the Bohr theory, which gave rise to the weird orbital numbers. Unfortunately, new difficulties were later encountered, which have not yet been overcome. But the new theory of De Broglie has brought about a remarkable state of affairs which constitutes one of the paradoxes of physics today.

An atom may be thought of as consisting
of either particles or waves!—Copyright,

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Most of us will agree with the Providence
Journal which says folks won't care for the Swarthmore college professor's substitution
for the twenty-third psalm. Dr. Holmes says
the "Lord is my shepherd" is a sentimental phrase vaguely suggesting sheep, and that it is meaningless today because modern citizens cannot be expected to know anything about sheep. He would substitute dynamo, gear-shift, antiseptic and such modern necessities for shepherd. He would put a hospital room in place of the green pastures. He would put gasoline filling stations in the place of the poetry of comfort and of faith.

This is an insult to the capacity of men and women for imagination. It is an insult to their appreciation of the language of the spirit.

Lady Carlisle, well-known English woman,
says today's children are more beautiful than those of earlier times. The reason is easy to see. We know more about food, clothing and shelter for babies than we did. More emphasis is put on well-being, diet and medical care.
And our ideals have changed. Today we associate beauty with health and good physique. The beauties of the early Victorian novelists were frail, delicate, sickly. Pallor has given way to sun tan.

Thoughtful people will be interested in the work of the child welfare committee of the League of Nations. To this committee a French woman, president of the international council of nurses, has made a secret report.
It is learned that part of her report, on social
and moral conditions in the United States, are sensational. She finds "depths of misery, moral and physical, such as would appall the most experienced of welfare workers." It is reported that one of the principal dangers to girls in the working class lies in a lack of family unity and the habit of seeking recreation outside the home. Quoting a judge of the juvenile court in New York, the report says:
"The judge attributed a great deal of the increase in child delinquency to the prohibition law. Parents break the law and are inadvertent drinkers. The child becomes accustomed to seeing the law disobeyed. He often employed by the parents to carry fumented liquors and sell them and, with these bad examples before him, he loses all respect
for the law."

Well, there may be much in what the judge
says, but there are few boys and girls explored by fathers and mothers to sell liquor.
It would seem the judge is laying a great deal of stress on exceptional cases. There is,
however, no doubt that the sight of law-
breaking must gradually demoralize young people in the impressionable age of life.

It is said modern Bible students plan a revision of the New Testament. That is not so important as it sounds. The idea is to now—and plain enough.

WORK TO BE LET IN JUNE

Contracts for Improvement
of Main St Will Be Awarded in Month.

The paving of Main street and Columbus street certain portions on the end of that section may be in the middle of June, city officials say.

Location entailing considerable legal advertising will be beginning on the street at that time, it was said.

Payment for resurfacing of the street has been made. Small asphalt or an asphalt concrete probable types from the city will be chosen.

Between Church and Main streets will be removed as a part of the improvement program on Main street.

Plans for resurfacing of the street similar to those completed on Main street will place it on a par with the other streets which received the treatment last year.

By the age of storm water parades by the southern portions of the city.

The proposed improvement will be facilitated by the construction of storm water lines to replace the clogged and inadequate line through which storm water now must pass.

TRAFFIC CONTROL

City Officials See New Apparatus Demonstrated

Explanation of an automatic system of traffic regulation was made before a group of city officials in the office of Safety Director T. E. Son yesterday by a representative of the company making the device.

Officials, who are considering the installation of three traffic lights at various points in the city, made no decision on the purchase of such equipment but learned the method of its operation.

The traffic signal operates with lights similar to those now used here but the traffic is controlled by rubber covered sensitive pads which are buried in the pavement approximately 50 feet from the intersection on all incoming streets.

The Stars Say— For Tuesday, May 20

BY GENEVIEVE REMBLE
TUESDAY'S astrological forecast holds several conflicting auguries. Although private contacts and affairs may flourish and the finances are under encouraging avar, yet the employment is under hazardous aspect new ventures are likely to encounter setback and subtlety and all writings and contracts are under a sign read as perilous. It will be difficult to push matters to fortunate issues and there is some hint of change unfortunate litigation with fraud or misrepresentation.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter a year of difficult and hazardous situations in employment as well as in new ventures and the making of contracts. These are under adverse rulership but finances and personal relations hold some advantageous positions. Shun litigation and sign papers cautiously. A child born on this day should be ambitious, capable and popular, but it may find many obstacles to surmount in employment and in the launching of its highest aims. It may incline to subtlety and stratagem in attaining its ends.

Men who have the same bad habits discuss them but they seldom break them.

CHAPTER 12

A Piece of Jade

It was a jade phoenix that had captured the glass case! And Dan's reaction to his discovery was the feeling that something inside was being torn up by the roots! "What are you talking about, Mrs. Parados?" Samuels demanded. "I'm talking about Dan's jade phoenix," Mrs. Parados retorted. "He kept it in that glass case. Don't you see the case is empty? Dan thought the world of it." Mrs. Parados was badly shaken. The phoenix under her eyes were bloodred.

"I don't understand," Samuels said. "A phoenix—what do you mean?" "A remarkable bird," Elque explained. "The ancients believed in it. It was almost immortal, that phoenix, and always of the female. Five hundred—perhaps a thousand—years it lived."

"Parados had one of those birds, you mean?" Samuels asked. "Not alive, monsieur," Elque answered him. "But in jade. It was sometimes a symbol of luck."

"How much was it worth?" Elque shrugged his plump shoulders. "Oh, I don't know." "Perhaps $2,000," I said. "They are quite rare."

"Dan wouldn't have sold his for a million," Mrs. Parados asserted. "I'm not exaggerating, either."

"Why did he value it so highly?" Samuels wanted to know.

"It was Dan's lucky piece," Mrs. Parados said. "His talisman."

"He was superstitious about it?"

"Yes, indeed. He believed the phoenix brought him his money," Mrs. Parados gave a freezing laugh. "The day he lost his lucky piece he lost his life."

"I'm not superstitious, but it gave me a queer feeling."

"The one who shot Parados took the bird," Samuels declared.

"But it was taken before he was shot!" I countered. I told Samuels I was sure Parados hadn't known it was gone until I saw him look at the case.

"Where'd he get it?" Samuels asked Mrs. Parados. She didn't know.

"How long have you been married to him?" That tormented look leaped into Mrs. Parados' eyes.

"For 20 years," she said huskily. "Twenty years of hell."

"Today," Elque murmured, "is the twentieth—um—anniversary of the wedding of monsieur and madame. Also, it is the birthday of madame."

"I don't see how he fell for such bunk," Samuels muttered.

"Ah, you have not the inward eye," Elque interposed. "He was of peasant stock—and his were the peasant—um—superstitions."

"Where was your husband born, Mrs. Parados?" Samuels asked.

"In France. But his father was Greek. His mother was French."

"Tell me what you know of his past—before you met him."

"I don't know anything."

"You expect me to believe that?" "I don't care whether you believe it or not," Mrs. Parados said. "It is so. Dan said his past was none of my business."

"The deputy let it go at that, but I doubted if he was satisfied. I wasn't."

"Any of you people seen this phoenix today?" he asked.

"Granger, it appeared, had seen it in the morning when he had laid kindling in the grate. Manning had noticed it before lunch when she dusted the room and Miss Jambles had seen it in the early afternoon."

No one admitted seeing it since then.

"Some one did—that's certain," Samuels said grimly.

A clock in the hall began to strike 12.

"That'll do for tonight," Samuels said. "None of you leave the island—understand? I want to talk to Elque."

"Miss Brent would like to know" where she stands," I said bluntly. "You practically accused her a while ago of killing Parados. Have you changed your mind?"

"No."

"His positive tone angered me. 'How can you take such an unreasonable attitude?' I demanded. 'You say Parados was killed with a pistol equipped with a silencer! Where in the name of common sense could a girl of Miss Brent's type have gotten hold of such an instrument?' And the phoenix was gone at least an hour before she attempted to take the portrait. Don't these facts mean anything to you?"

"You pretty-girl-ridden fools make me ill," Samuels retorted. "Haven't Miss Brent two strong motives? Isn't she without an alibi? Isn't she admitted breaking into the house to commit a theft? Go to bed and sleep on it, son."

"I was furious, but Caroline suddenly caught me by the arm. 'It was a lucky thing that she did, for I was on the verge of losing my temper.'"

"Mr. Hunt!" she was crying. "You can't help me that way. Please—oh, please don't say any more!"

"She was right, of course. I began to cool down."

"It was dear of you!" Caroline whispered, and I felt that it wasn't so bad after all. "I do thank you for all you have done!"

"She gave me a quirky, devastating smile that left me staring after her, as she fled from the room, with an ache in my heart."

"Mrs. Parados was the last to leave. I was halfway upstairs when I heard Elque say, 'Madame!'"

"His tone made me glance back. 'Yes?'"

"Madame, in our little game you said that you saw Mr. Anderson enter the patio window shortly after half-past six—"

"That was only a game, M. Elque," Mrs. Parados said harshly. "You did not see him, madame?"

"No!"

A terrific emphasis was behind that single word. I pondered over it as I climbed the stairs.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDG M. LEWIS

TUESDAY. Warm and sunny when I let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and made the kitchen fire and was going out to the barn to milk the dumbered brutes, and I put the mail on the kitchen step and went and clung up in the tree across the sidewalk from our gate, and the Lost Bag of Tripe came down the street and turned in our gate and I said "Hello mut." And he looked all around, and then he must have thought he imagined it and started in the yard again, and when he got almost to the back step I said, "Hello mut," again, and he looked all around again, and then he got down on his hands and knees and stuck his head under the back step and pulled it right out again and doled and put both hands over his face and I slid down the tree and when I got to him he had three deep scratches the whole length of his nose, so the cat must have been under the step with whatever she has got, and he said it was all my fault, and I told the freak that it wasn't me that stuck his head under the step, but he went in to tell my mother so I took the milkpail and skunk out to the barn. When I went in to feed my face I found out that he piked right into the house and into the bedroom where my mother had just got out of bed. He isn't so very bright, and I guess now he knows it.

Sometimes a fella don't know when he is lucky. We all went to my house from school to play on the acting pole but my mother made me spread a blanket in the front yard in the sun and take Annabelle Lee out on it and watch her, so the whole bunch went away, and they went over to Mills street and there was a dump truck parked at the top of the hill, and they all got in it and started it down hill with the break off, and a train came along and Danty tried to set the break and it wouldn't work, and they all piled out and skunk out and the engine knocked the truck high and they all came biling back and skunk in our barn and hid, and I went out to ask them what was the matter, and while I was out there Annabelle Lee picked all the tulips in my mother's garden. I took them away from her and stuck the stems in the ground and didn't say anything, and my mother didn't find out about them till I had taken the cows to the pasture, and the gimble girl had come along and went in and asked my mother if she could have some tulips, and my mother told her no, so she went, and my mother went out to look at them and thought she had done it, and she was almost crying when I got home, but she didn't ask me any questions so I didn't say anything about it.

I and Jubilee will be home soon if the whole bunch gets arrested about the truck. They are certainly alert.

Love's Reawakening

The Story of a Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Forgives Marion's Deception

"RUN across her when you were shopping?" Lillian repeated after me, her voice hoarse. "Do you mean that she was alone? You know she never has been in the city alone."

"No, no," I said feigning an impatience which I did not feel, but which I felt might be salutary for my overwrought friend. "Carolyn and Mr. Owen were with her. They evidently had stopped on their way up town, so as to save all the time possible. You know every minute of shopping time is precious to a school-girl who has had no opportunity to see the city shops."

"I suppose so," she said, but her tone was sullen instead of acquiescent, and I took a step nearer to her and spoke sharply.

"You have the right to remind me that all this is none of my business," I said, "but I must warn you that a great deal depends upon the way you treat Marion about this episode. Her reputation is very much worried, very remissful that she did not telephone you, is insisting that she will stay at home from the party tonight as an atonement."

The Sardin Secret

"You must have said a few things

to her," Lillian commented shrewdly, and I flushed.

"I am afraid I did, for I was so startled at seeing her," I replied, "but that is an additional reason why you should not be too hard on her. Please, Lillian, I beg of you, don't."

She sprang from her chair with an amused little laugh, in which, however, I caught the sound of a choked-back sob, and flung her arms about me tightly.

"Don't what?" she queried. "Don't hurt her up? No, I promise I won't leave a mark on her. I'll use a rubber hose. Seriously, though, Madge, I was angry and frightened enough a minute or two ago to lock her up on bread and water for the whole vacation. But I've come out of the nightmare, thanks to you. And now—how soon can I get my arms around her?"

"As soon as the elevator can bring her up here," I answered with a relieved smile, for knowing her prejudices and her obsession concerning Marion's growing-up and away from her I had feared her reaction to my story. As I spoke I stepped to the telephone.

"Please ask Miss Morton and Mr. Underwood to come to the apartment," I directed. "They are in the library. Thank you."

I faced Lillian with the caution which I already had given to her husband.

"Don't say anything to Marion—about—Robert. Carelessly I spoke of your being nervously upset, and she immediately was anxious and questioning. I told her that you had been worrying about a business trouble but that the worst was over. She probably will say nothing to you about it, but if she does—"

"I'll remember," she said, moving to the door of the apartment and opening it. As I watched her standing with head bent forward that she might hear the step of the elevator at the floor, and saw the look of joy illuminating her face, I had no more fear for Marion's reception.

As we heard the elevator come to a stop, Lillian was out in the corridor, then into the main hall. As I followed her I heard the patter of light young feet, and then with a little gurgle of joy Marion was in her mother's arms, while her stepfather and I, exchanging glances of tender amusement, gently "abused" them back into the privacy of their own apartment.

"Oh, Mummy!" Marion's clear, ringing voice changed the words over and over between ecstatic hugs.

"Let me look at you!" Lillian said, holding her out at arm's length.

"Pretty nifty daughter this house has," Harry Underwood interposed, and I guessed that he thought it wise to let down the patent emotional tension between the two facing each other. But there was also genuine fatherly pride in his voice and eyes.

"Do you pipe the color symphony, Madge?" he queried next, and Marion flushed with gratification as well as embarrassment at her stepfather's approving query.

"You haven't seen this rig before, have you, Dad?" she said confidently, and for the first time in many years I heard Harry Underwood betray his shaken pose by a quick intake of the breath. I shot a furtive glance at Lillian's radiant face and knew that Marion could not have atoned in more royal or satisfactory fashion for the mild deception she had practiced upon her mother. That little word "Dad" was, I knew, an accolade to Harry Underwood and a precious boon to Lillian.

The Drifters Arrive

"No, but I'm seeing it now, dear," he said warmly, "and I think I'd better follow you around whenever you wear it to show away the young men—eh, Madge?"

"You'll probably be needed," I smiled as I watched Marion unconsciously preening herself and casting a furtive glance at the long mirror opposite, which reflected an uncommonly beautiful young girl in a blue gown and hat of the same shade cut back from her face, a dark blue broadcloth coat with luxuriant soft collar and cuffs of apricot, dark blue gloves, shoes, stockings of the same line as the apricot, and darling little black short, rumpy slacks shoes with triflingly high heels.

As if by magic, had been a girl, the whole scene being and Harry Underwood, with a satisfied look, rejoined the Sardinian apartment's abode.

"Mrs. Drifters and Mr. Drifters arrive."

Then put on medical shoes, gently walk and dance with greatest comfort because there's nothing left to bother you.

Radox liberates oxygen which softens hard outer layer of corns, each night penetrating further and further through the pores carrying the salts to actual root of corn so loosening it that it comes right out. BRINGS END TO LOBBY SESSION

Senator Has Heated Clash with McBride Over Plan of "Grading" Candidates

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, May 20.—Chargings that F. Scott McBride of the Anti-Balco League was not being candid, Senator Blaine Republican Wisconsin today adjourned the session of the senate lobby committee on (all tomorrow after an argument with the witness.

The Wisconsin senator was the only committee member present. He insisted that McBride refused to answer his questions concerning a "score card" prepared by the Anti-Balco League for grading candidates for office.

At one point Blaine said it might be necessary to ask a sergeant to enforce order.

He failed in an attempt to obtain a quorum of senators and with that adjourned the session.

When McBride exhibited reluctance to answer Blaine's question as to a number of persons in the audience, a plebeian.

Points Out Unlawful

Pointing to one Blaine asked that he stand and give his name.

The man was William D. Upshaw, former Democratic representative from Georgia. He said he had not started the applause. Upshaw said McBride had given a "brave answer."

At this statement there was hissing from some of the audience.

The questions and answers were short and snappy.

If you expect to get on this with us, you must stand still. Blaine told McBride you had better answer the questions.

He added that he was going to insist on answers.

Don't get warmed up. McBride countered.

You may bulldoze members of congress. Blaine asserted but I hope by this time you have found I will not be bulldozed.

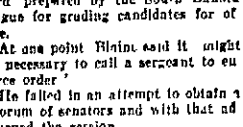

McBride related he would answer if you ask decent questions.

The league official said the "score card" in question had not been adopted by the league and he had not seen it. You are hard put this morning to get something out of the Anti-Balco League," he remarked to Blaine.

The score card would grade candidates for office as follows:

General appearance, 10 points; intellectual qualifications, 10 points; ability as a public speaker, 10 points; morality, prohibition sentiment and practices, 60 points; record as an official or in civil enterprises, 10 points; church affiliation, 10 points; family relations, two points; observation of Sabbath, two points; associations and kind of company kept, two points; membership in lodges and fraternal societies, two points.

11 SENIORS IN CLASS

Eleven seniors will be graduated from Edison High school in the class of 1930. They are left to right top row Paul Campbell and Harry Lazar, middle row, Vera Taylor, Newton Dalmonte, Matthew Carman and Ellen Stratton, bottom row Dorothy Mealy, Doyle How and George Talmage and Mary Lines.

County's Crow-Shooting Champ Finds Birds Scarce This Year

Special To The Star

KEYNON, May 20.—Hardly counting a crow shooting, champ is running into a little difficulty in locating the black scavengers this year. He stated today. To date he has killed less than 2,000 crows as compared to a total of 11,000 during the two year period 1928-29 when he held a record as county champion.

But even with a scarcity of crows the marksmen Thomas H. Gibson of Melancthon township is making a nice living from his hobby. Since May 3 he has prevented crows from eating his corn and 27 chickens hawks to Deputy Auditor W. B. Wilson for payment at the rate of 1 cent a head for crows and $1 a head for hawks. During the two year period he was compelled to lay off three days on account of illness.

During the week April 27 to May 3 he killed more than 200 crows and a number of hawks. He said Gibson kills chickens hawks more plentiful this year than in 1929 when he collected a total of 87. So far this year he has killed more than 100.

KEYNON, May 20.—Three ordinances were submitted to the council by the ordinance committee Monday night. One provides for parking on only one side of certain streets. In the business section only one street between Loring and Allen and Allen and Clear Sts. is affected. Parking will be allowed on only the south side of this street. Main st. may have parking only on the east side in the business section. Most of the business men favor the limitation but this is not provided for in the ordinance. Over 200 parking spaces in the residential districts where parking will be allowed on only one side are West High from the railroad depot to the old T. & O. station site. Winsor Center to Union and West Marion to High. Other streets may be included when the ordinance comes up for its second reading at the next meeting.

The second ordinance provides that no filling station or garage be erected within 200 feet of a school or church and that no filling station or garage be erected in the residential districts except with the consent of three-fourths of the property owners within a radius of 40 feet. This will come up at the next meeting for its second reading.

The third ordinance provides for a building code under which no building may be erected in the business district except by permit from the village clerk. The permit may be obtained by an application giving specifications and estimated costs. The cost of the permit is graduated according to the value of the building. 50 cents for up to $2,000, one dollar and one cent for each additional $1,000.

Some difficulties have occurred in connection with the installation of the large disposal plant by C. E. Lewis for demonstration purposes. The action in regard to whether Lewis or the town is to pay for certain sewerage alterations will be threshed out by the sewer committee with Lewis and City Engineer Thad Park.

CENTURY MARK OF SIMPSON REJECTED

I. A. A. F. WILL NOT APPROVE 9:2 TIME

Use of Starting Blocks Frowned on by Board; Wykoff Mark Still Good.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, May 20.—If the United States wants to get a "line two" century into the record books it apparently will have to nominate Frank Wykoff for the honor rather than George Simpson.

Using starting blocks, Simpson, the Ohio State sprinter, smashed the track when he ran the 100 yards in 9.25 seconds last June, a full fifth of a second better than the listed world's record.

When the Amateur Athletic Union met in annual session, Simpson's astonishing performance was approved with the proviso however that the use of starting blocks must be sanctioned by the International Amateur Athletic Federation which passes on all world's track and field records.

The sanction apparently will not be forthcoming. Yesterday in Berlin the records committee of the International Federation recommended rejection of the American proposal that records made with the use of starting blocks be recognized universally. The committee's recommendation could retard Simpson's record to rejection by the I. A. A. F. paves the way for rejection not only of Simpson's great mark but the record time of 2.45 seconds for the 220 yard low hurdles established last year by Dick Rockaway of

Ohio State also with the aid of starting blocks.

Wykoff's mark stands.

With Simpson's mark almost certain to be rejected the United States can point with pride to Wykoff's 9.25 rather than George Simpson's 9.20.

Wykoff's record performance of course will not be presented for approval before the international federation at this time. It was made only a few weeks ago and first must come before the Amateur Athletic Union for approval. The A. A. U. then may present it for international approval at the next meeting of the I. A. A. F.

May Discontinue Blocks

The international committee is reluctant to approve the use of starting blocks because they result in faster times in this country especially where top-notch performers are concerned. Most of them directly or indirectly are aiming at world's records and they probably will not be inclined to risk disapproval of their record performance through the use of the starting blocks.

Although Simpson's mark will at most certainly fail of approval the listed world's record of 10.6-10 probably will be superseded by the 9.5-10 performance of Eddie Nolan, a student of Michigan Negro star in May of last year.

O'DOWD WINS FIGHT WITH JIMMY REED

Fans Raise Yell of "Long Count" in Ninth; O'Dowd Easily Victor.

COLUMBUS, May 20.—Another one of those "long count" incidents today left local boxing fans a little something to talk about as an aftermath of the Mike O'Dowd-Jimmy Reed fight here last night when O'Dowd won the decision after 10 rounds of one-sided battling.

O'Dowd, a featherweight, closed in on Reed in the ninth round and sent him to the floor for the count of seven. When Reed staggered to his feet O'Dowd clamped down upon him again and this time sent him back to the ropes and forward on his face. Reed stayed down for the count of nine and was saved by the bell when he regained his feet.

Boxing fans today claimed that the latter count was longer than the required 10, much longer, but as O'Dowd won the fight anyhow the odds were as great as it might have been.

RAIN AND COLD STOP ALL BUT ONE MAJOR GAME; DETROIT WINS

Tigers Annex Double Header from St. Louis Browns in Only Games Played

DETROIT, May 20.—The Detroit Tigers could play the St. Louis Browns all the time they might be champions of the American league but as it is they are perched in seventh position after stretching their winning streak to four straight games with a double header victory over the Browns yesterday in the only games played in either of the major leagues since a cold weather wiped out all other scheduled contests.

With the 5 to 4 victory in 10 innings and the 4 to 2 triumph in the nightcap the Tigers made it five out of eight starts against the Browns.

The Tiger pitching was nothing to talk about but the ability to hit in the pinnacles decided the issues. Five hits in the eighth inning of the first game netted four runs—enough to tie the score while four of the ten safeties obtained off Sam Gray in the second contest came in the third inning and produced three runs. Bill Killefer let his mound ace Walter Stewart go the route in the opener while Buckey Harris was forced to call on four of his moundmen.

TITLE SEEKERS HUNT MORE BOXING HELP

Present Array of Sparring Partners Not Enough To Keep Fighters Busy.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—New sparring partners were expected today at the camp of Max Schmeling where the German boxer is preparing for his world heavyweight title bout against Jack Sharkey to be fought in New York on June 12. Because George Norton is the only sparring partner left in the Tooton's camp Schmeling ended yesterday.

Considerable excitement among Schmeling's managers and promoters of the forthcoming bout was reported today when it was announced the German intended to fly 125 miles from here to Schenectady, New York on Thursday to make a runabout talk to his mother in Berlin. Some in Schmeling's camp have objected to his making the air trip and it is possible he will decide to travel to Schenectady by motor.

Sharkey Looks Good

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., May 20.—Jack Sharkey may extend his boxing program today with the scheduled arrival of another punch absorber. The Boston sailor boy boxed only three rounds yesterday working with Johnny Gross and King Solomon.

In two rounds against Grosso Sharkey looked sharp and likely using a vicious hook often.

Paul Cavalier who trained with Sharkey in some of his previous fights, including the one against Jack Dempsey, was due to join the training party today. He will be needed as Grosso and Solomon suffered considerably in yesterday's drill.

This Game of GOLF

By O.B. KEELER

THE death of Alex Smith recently removed one of the pioneer golfing professionals of the United States and as picturesque a figure as sport in any line has held. His pupils won many national championships and his maxims are heard abroad in the land especially among the older golfers.

He was the first professional employed by the Atlanta Athletic Club when its East Lake country club home and golf course were constructed—the home club of Bobby Jones and Alex Blitching pupil of Alex's brother in law Stewart Maiden.

In the roles of kingmaker Alex and Stewart stand almost at a tie. Alex's three most celebrated pupils, Jerry Travers, Marion Hollins and Glenn Collett, have won among them ten major golf titles. Stewart's eminent candidates Bobby Jones and Alex's Striffing Fraser have won just a dozen. This perhaps is the more remarkable in that as players of the game Alex and Stewart differed greatly in method. Alex was a for mtable tournament competitor, in his day winning the United States open in 1909 and 1910 while Stewart never cared much for the big competition.

Alex Smith's golf teaching was a curious model of terseness and emphasis. His conversation was as rugged as his personality which was one never to be forgotten.

He never studied the line of his putts or hung over the stroke.

Miss McQuinn was his motto and his advice.

Don't you ever pick up things on the line of your putt. Alex was asked once. They might throw the ball off the line you know.

They might throw it on the line too replied Alex.

In the matter of hanging over a putt Alex once told a pupil daily that the pole was getting smaller all the time.

And by the time you are ready to putt he added you couldn't get a quinine pill down it.

Alex considered that Walter Hagen and Jerry Travers had the finest temperament for golf he had ever observed but that his own pupil the great amateur who won four United States amateur championships and one open championship had a shade on the great professional.

You can tell sometimes when the Hain is up or down in a match said Alex. But no man could look at Jerry and say if he was 5 up or 3 down. His expression and manner never changed a line.

Alex was a man of great natural intellect and he had worked out a sort of fatalistic philosophy for his own methods in golf. When the fall was not rolling for him and he was having a bad round Alex would not waste good profanity or temper.

Alex would say it's not my day.

And he would play along, cheerfully and cheerily confident that another day would come which was his day.

Ah well—his day is done now. But Alex Smith left a permanent memory behind him and his place in the sun is well assured.

CAGLE JOINS STAFF OF NEW YORK PAPER

Evening Journal Adds Famous Army Football Star to Sports Department

NEW YORK, May 20.—Christian (Red) Cagle famous Army football star who recently resigned from the United States military academy where his secret marriage in 1928 became known today joined the sports staff of the New York Evening Journal.

Cagle was one of West Point's greatest football stars. For the last three years he was chosen as a member of the all American football team.

This job of writing is a tough one said Cagle in his first by-line story today. The pen may be mightier than the sword but I guess I am more used to one than to the other. However I will do the best I can and hope you will all stand by. Don't criss too hard if I miss a few passes or get thrown for a loss.

NOTED SPORTSMAN DIES

AKRON, May 20.—Joseph P. Pfeiffer 65 noted sportsman and a member of the Ohio conservation council appointed by Governor Cooper was dead at his home here today. He died last night after a long illness.

SIMPSON WILL LEAD OHIO IN QUEST FOR BIG TEN MEET TITLE

Buckeyes Rank as One of Outstanding Contenders in 1930 Track Meet.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., May 20.—Led by George Simpson running in his last Big Ten meet the Ohio State track squad will journey to North western Friday and Saturday to compete in the thirteenth annual western conference outdoor track and field meet.

Runners up last year the Buckeyes again rank as one of the chief contenders for the title. On the basis of the season's performances Wisconsin and Michigan are the other teams in the front rank. Wisconsin undefeated this season scored a decisive victory over Ohio State Saturday in the quadrangular meet.

A good sized Buckeye squad will make the trip to Northwestern. Simpson will be out to average the defeat administered last year by Eddie Nolan of Michigan and hopes to up set the new conference mark of 9.5 set last spring by the Michigan flash. Dick Rockaway will lead and his titles in the high and low hurdles last year he set a new world's record of 22.8 in winning the low and won the high in 11.9. Joe S. Hannon of Illinois will usually threaten Rockaway's high but he is now in the low.

Ohio State is strong in the lesser hurdles and mile distance but are extremely weak in full events. Chet Haverer, Marion Buckeye miler is counted on for a second or third and Frank Hays and Rupert Beetham are figured as place takers in the half mile.

RAIN ALLOWS SINGLE GAME IN ASSOCIATION

St. Paul Gains Tighter Hold on Second Place by Beating Kansas City.

By International News Service
Yesterday being another one of those miserable spring days when both rain and chill weather get in their last mugs before summer activities in the American Association were confined to one game.

St. Paul strengthened its hold on second place by snugging a 5-in-2 victory from Kansas City. The Saints are now only one half a game ahead of both Columbus and Toledo, the latter two teams being tied for third position. The Saints margin was even slimmer yesterday.

Columbus moved on to Indianapolis for a series there after playing only two games of a scheduled four tilt match with Toledo. Toledo moved down to Louisville where it will get a chance at the league leaders.

Meanwhile St. Paul is expected to have easy sailing at Milwaukee and Kansas City, too, should have its own way with Minneapolis.

STAR HORSE DESTROYED

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, May 20.—Mrs. Graham Barr Vanderbilt's Chouteau winner of the Colorado stakes at Jauca has been destroyed. The two-year-old son of Bubbling Over Perfection which cost $23,000 as a yearling last August bolted into the rails at Belmont Park yesterday and injured his self severely.

ON THE INSIDE

With Bob Kirkpatrick

THE city baseball commission last night voted to allow the protest of Calvary Sunday school against Trinity Baptist on the charge that the latter played an ineligible man in the first game of the current baseball season. Trinity defeated Calvary in this contest 10 to 0, although they were not conceded a chance of winning prior to the game. Calvary immediately charged them with using an ineligible man whose name will be withheld inasmuch as the commission does not think it was done intentionally. This places Calvary in the list of four teams who have not lost a game this season. Trinity is relegated to the second division.

THE games which were to have been played Monday in Sunday School league No. 2 but were postponed on account of an oversupply of rain will be played Wednesday. They will be played on the same diamonds as originally scheduled and at the same time. The Christians will tangle with the Lee at Team Reformed will play Forest Lawn U. B. will meet St. Paul and Wesley will play the First Presbyterians. The diamonds and schedule will be published again tomorrow.

TONIGHT will see the second round of Sunday School No. 1 games if rain does not interfere. The schedule is located elsewhere on this page. Last week we named exactly half of the winners in this league so well try it once more. We name Epworth Juniors to win again this week. Last week we missed on this but this time we should be right. Trinity does not seem to have much chance although it may upset the dope. Calvary will beat St. Mary's unless St. Mary's plays even better than last week.

THE other two games are pretty close. Epworth No. 1 is hoped to beat Christians by everyone but the latter team. They refuse to even think they have a chance of losing. Consequently we're doing it for them and we name No. 1 to win. That may be wrong. As for the Epworth Seniors vs. Lutheran game it is another contest that may turn out either way. It looks like the Seniors ought to win but we're not so sure of it. That's too close. Let some one else predict it. We name no probable winner.

COLORED FLASH OUT FOR NEXT SIX WEEKS

Auto Injuries Will Keep Kio Chocolate from Fighting Fidel Labarba.

NEW YORK, May 20.—And Chocolate Cuban featherweight who was injured Sunday night in an automobile accident will probably not be able to fight for a month or six weeks it was stated today. Chocolate is in a hospital at Nyack, New York. The Cuban was scheduled to box Fidel Labarba of Los Angeles here late this month and it is likely the bout will be postponed until fall. A definite announcement was expected from Madison Square Garden of the city.
